THE Number of Captains of Frigates conſiſts of 164——Lieutenants of Ships of the Line, 373 Lieutenants of Frigates, 276——Enſigns of Ships of the Line, 259——And of Enſigns of Frigates, 407.

CORPS OF PILOTOS, OR MASTERS OF THE NAVY.

To each of the Three Departments of the Royal Navy is annexed a Body of Pilotos, divided into Claſſes, under the Inſpection of Officers of the Navy. The whole Body is compoſed of 445 Individuals, among whom they reckon many very able and intelligent Members.

ENGINEERS OF THE NAVY.

The Corps of Engineers of the Royal Navy was eſtabliſhed in the Year 1770, in the Reign of the late King Charles the IIId.

This Corps is only compoſed of Officers, viz.

1 Engineer General.
6 Engineers Directors.
6 Chief Engineers.
11 Second Engineers, and
60 Subaltern Engineers.

This Corps is divided into Three Departments, and has the Inſpection of the Dock Yards, Arſenals, Conſtruction of Ships, Rope Walks, Sail Manufactories, Dykes, and all Buildings belonging to the King in each Department.

NAVY ARTILLERY.

The Artillery of the Royal Navy is compoſed of 3,320 Privates, divided into 20 Brigades, which are diſtributed in the Three Departments, and commanded by Officers of the Navy.

THE MARINES.

This Corps conſiſts of 12,324 Privates, divided into 12 Battalions of Six Companies each, diſtributed in the Three Departments, and who are likewiſe commanded by Officers of the Navy.

THE THREE DEPARTMENTS OF THE NAVY.

The Spaniſh Navy is divided into Three Diviſions, or Departments, viz. Cadiz, Ferrol, and Carthagena.

In each of theſe Departments are large Dock Yards, a great Arſenal, a Royal Academy for 92 Garde-Marines, or Cadets, a Nautical School for Pilots, one for Artillery, a College of Phyſicians, one for Surgeons, a large Hoſpital, a numerous Stock of Chaplains, and ſeveral Manufactories for the Royal Navy.

DEPARTMENT OF CADIZ.

This Department is the firſt, and moſt important of the three, on Account of its favourable Situation for the Departure of Fleets. Its greateſt Inconvenience is the Want of Freſh Water, by which Ships ready to ſail have often been delayed—the Watering-place being at the Diſtance of Two Leagues, and contrary Winds having retarded the Arrival of the Water Barges from the Port of St. Mary.

Cadiz being the head Department, the Chief Commanders of the Royal Navy have their Station here, the Commanders of the other Two Departments being ſubordinate to this.

The Iſle of Leon is a conſiderable Town on the other Side of the Bay; is well built, and the Seat of the Marine Department.

The Ships of the Royal Navy are anchored towards the Eaſt Side of the Bay of Cadiz, near the Arſenals and Magazines of the Carraca.

The Arſenals, Dock Yards, &c. at this Port, are large and better provided, and ſtored, than thoſe of the other Departments.

The Sail Manufactories and Rope Walks of this Department, in the Year 1795, employed 514 Men, who wrought up 12,857 Quintals of Hemp for the Uſe of the Royal Navy.

This Department employs likewiſe conſtantly in its Arſenals between Three and Four Hundred Galley Slaves, who have a very fine Building for their Abode.

DEPARTMENT OF FERROL.

This Department is reckoned the ſecond, but has very great Inconveniences, not on Account of its Unhealthineſs, as falſely reported by ſome French Travellers, but for the frequent Rains which retard the Works in the Dock Yards, and the Difficulty of coming out of the Harbour with only one Wind, viz. North Eaſt.

The Sail Manufactories and Rope Walks of this Department, in the Year 1795, employed 1129 Men, who wrought up 22,800 Quintals of Hemp for the Uſe of the Royal Navy.

The Arſenal employs likewiſe between Five and Six Hundred Galley Slaves, who are diſtributed in its Yards and Workſhops.

THE DEPARTMENT OF CARTHAGENA.

Carthagena is the Port where the greateſt Number of Ships are built, caulked, and careened. The Harbour is a Baſon hollowed by Nature, and ſo deep that a 74 Gun Ship can moor cloſe to the Land. The Arſenal is the largeſt in Spain, and provided with every Thing that can facilitate the building, repairing, and fitting out of Ships. At the Pleaſure of the Builders the Water fills the magnificent Baſons, which ſerve as Stocks, and the Ship ſlides of itſelf into the Sea.

Each Ship has in this Arſenal its ſeveral Storehouſe, which contains the Rigging belonging to it marked and numbered.

The old Spaniſh Proverb, that there are only Three good Ports in the World, viz. the Months of June, July, and the Harbour of Carthagena, is a juſt Reflection in favour of its Safety.

The Entrance of the Harbour is defended by Two Forts, ſtrong by Nature and Art.

This Arſenal employs conſtantly a Number of Galley Slaves, who, in the Year 1795, amounted to 1514 Individuals.

The Sail Manufactories and Rope Walks, in the Year 1795, employed 989 Men, who wrought up 11,155 Quintals of Hemp for the Uſe of the Royal Navy.

PORT MAHON.

The Arſenal and Dock Yards of this Port employ conſtantly about 500 Men. Frigates are the largeſt Ships of War that are built here.

THE HAVANNA.

The Arſenals and Dock Yards of this Port employ conſtantly about 1200 Men. The Ships of War built here are all of Cedar, which have a peculiar Advantage well-known to the Intelligent.

THE REGISTER OF SEAMEN.

All the Seamen in Spain are claſſed and divided into Three Departments for the Service of the Royal Navy, and are inſpected by Commiſſaries appointed in their reſpective Diſtricts.

The Regiſter of the Claſſes for the Year 1795, makes the Number of the Whole amount to 63,786 Individuals, viz.

1. Maſters of Ships - - -	6,206
2. Able Seamen - - - -	37,214
3. Invalid Seamen - - -	11,504
4. Artificers and Workmen - -	8,371
5. Invalid Ditto - - -	491
	63,786

The Coaſts of Galicia, Biſcay, Catalonia, and St. Lucar, are noted as having the beſt Seamen.

The Number of Veſſels employed by the Spaniſh Trade in the Year 1795, including the Coaſters and Fiſhing Smacks, amounted as regiſtered to 10,635.

The Provinces of Arragon, Catalonia, Valencia, Murcia, and Granada, ſupply the King's Arſenals with a ſufficient Quantity of good Hemp, of which they make very fine Sails, Cables, &c.

The Mountains of Aſturias, Navarre, and ſome Parts of the Pyrenees, ſupply the Spaniſh Dock Yards with Timber, and particularly with the White Oak, ſo much eſteemed for Ship-building; but not in ſufficient Quantities, and very expenſive on Account of their Diſtance from the Sea, and the Want of Canals in theſe Latitudes to facilitate the Tranſportation.

COPPER MINES.

There are ſeveral Copper Mines in Old Spain, of which that of Rio Tinto is the moſt productive, and ſupplies Part of the Artillery. The Spaniards having found out the Method of refining their Copper from Peru (not from Mexico as aſſerted by ſome foreign Writers), they will ſoon have no Occaſion for that brought hitherto from Sweden and Trieſte, at ſo much Expence.

The Copper of Spaniſh America is now refined and manufactured in the Two Royal Foundries of Barcelona and Seville.

At the End of the Year 1795, the three-fourth Parts of the Ships of the Line and Frigates were bottomed with Copper.

IRON MINES.

The Province of Biſcay, and Part of the Pyrenees, furniſh the Iron neceſſary for the whole Spaniſh Artillery. Cannon of this Metal are caſt at Lierganes and Cavada. The Spaniſh Iron, next to that of Damaſcus, furniſhes the beſt Arms in the World; and in former Times brought in a vaſt Revenue to the Crown.

The Art of working it is practiſed here in great Perfection.

Spaniſh Gun Barrels, and Swords of Toledo, being even at this Time highly valued.

LEAD MINES.

The Kingdom of Spain has ſeveral Lead Mines, of which that of Linarez is the moſt productive, alone ſupplying a greater Quantity than is wanting for the King's Service.

SALTPETRE.

Spain is one of the richeſt Countries of Europe in Saltpetre. The Provinces of Arragon and La Mancha furniſh this Article in great Quantity, but not of ſo good a Quality as that from the large Manufactory of Madrid. In the Year 1790, the latter furniſhed 20,000 Quintals of Saltpetre to the Powder Mills in the different Parts of the Kingdom.

The Three new Manufactories of Saltpetre eſtabliſhed in Spaniſh America, viz. Lima, Mexico, and Sta. Fe de Bogota, are planned upon a large Scale, and furniſhed together in the Year 1794 above 80,000 Quintals of that Article.

GUNPOWDER.

The Spaniſh Gunpowder is of a very fine Quality, and carries much farther than that which is generally made in other Parts of Europe for the Uſe of Artillery.

CONCLUSION.

WHEN we fully conſider the Length of Time, and the great Reſources requiſite to the Formation of a powerful Navy, and that in a Country where the People in general have but little Inclination to go to Sea—where Fifty Years ago the greateſt Part of their Trade and Navigation was ſtill in the Hands of Foreigners, and where Men of talents, with the beſt Intentions, meet with ſo many Difficulties and Oppoſition *, it muſt be juſtly allowed that the preſent State of the Spaniſh Navy Eſtabliſhment affords no inconſiderable Proof of the Knowledge and Activity which that Nation has acquired under the wiſe and firm Adminiſtrations of her two laſt Miniſters and Friends to her true Intereſt, the Counts de Aranda and de Florida Blanca.

* A remarkable Inſtance of this, is the Removal of the Chevalier de Valdes y Bazan from the Direction of the Marine Department, which in fact is a great national Loſs, for he muſt be conſidered as the principal Reſtorer of the Spaniſh Navy.
